UM PROFESSOR NAMED 'WOMAN LAWYER OF THE YEAR'

MISSOULA--

Margery Brown, assistant dean and assistant professor at the University of Montana School of Law, was recently named the Woman Lawyer of the Year by the Women's Law Section of the State Bar of Montana.

The award was presented at a meeting of the Women's Law Section. Brown is the first recipient of the award.

Brown has been assistant dean since 1976. She holds two B.A. degrees, an M.A. degree in history and a J.D. degree, all from UM. In addition she was a Fulbright Scholar in history and journalism at Auckland University College, Auckland, New Zealand.

She has taught law, history, political science and journalism; reported for the Great Falls Tribune; and shared in the establishment of the Bigfork Summer Playhouse in Bigfork.

Brown served as a member of the Montana Constitution Revision Commission and the Montana Constitution Convention Commission. In addition she is an active member of the American Bar Association and the State Bar of Montana.
